Answer

The Highway (Liability for Straying Animals) Act 1983 (the Act) provides that the maximum recoverable in any one cause of action for negligence arising out of damage caused by animals straying on to a highway shall not exceed $500,000 and contains the factors the court should consider in making any determination.

I remind the Member that Standing Order 105 provides that questions should not seek legal advice and I recommend that he seek independent legal advice if he requires clarification on any of the provisions contained in the Act.

The other matters raised by the Member fall under the Regional Development, Lands and Transport portfolios and should be redirected accordingly.
